"People who say they sleep like a baby, don't have one..."

Anonymous

This debut picture book series uses the magical world of nature to promote feelings of well-being and confidence in preschool children. The first titles tackle two of the biggest challenges facing every parent – sleeping and eating. Touch and feel elements throughout the books give them a multisensory appeal and help to soothe young children in potentially stressful situations.

Feeling Sleepy is based on effective relaxation techniques for toddlers, to ensure that going to bed is a calming daily ritual. The rhyming text invites children to copy the animals as they snuggle down to sleep – encouraging children to nod off quickly and easily.

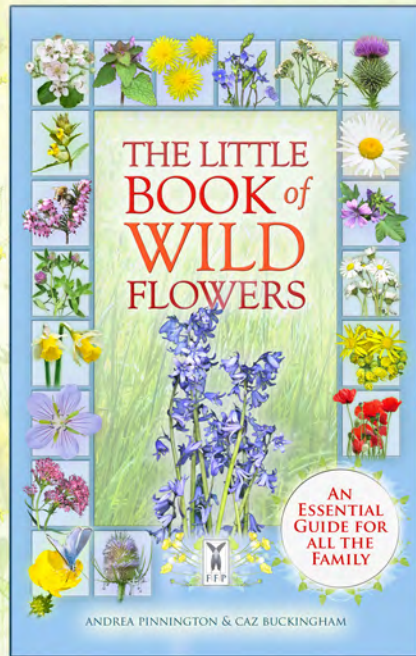

What's for Dinner? is a gently humorous look at the thorny issue of mealtimes. It charts the food choices and healthy eating habits of adorable baby animals making it fun for kids to follow their example.
